1695	10 - 12 June		charged with wandering up and down and calling himself an Egyptian		Proceedings of the Old Bailey, t16950828-54
1695	August	Old Bailey, MDX	in court	Francis Buckley of the Parish of St. Mary Islington, was likewise Indicted for Felony, for that he, being above the Age of 14 years, was seen to wander up and down from the 10th of June to the 12th following, calling and counterfeiting himself to be an Egyptian . The Evidence for the King was very positive, that they did hear him say he was an Egyptian , and king of the Egyptians . He was taken in a Barn at Hampstead , covered over with Straw, and two Egyptian Women sitting upon him; and they being made to rise, they discovered his Legs, and so pulled him out of the Straw. There was found upon him a Pistol, with a Scinsteer, and Rich [illegible text]. He had a Mare likewise hard by that was worth 20 l . The Prisoner had little to say, but that he never declared he was an Egyptian . The Evidence fully proving it against him, he was found guilty of Felony.	Proceedings of the Old Bailey, t16950828-54
1695	18 September	Tyburn, MDX	in gaol	X. Peter Lawman and Francis Buckley, both Condemned for Felony; that they being above the Age of 14 wandred up and down the Country calling themselves Egyptians. I endeavoured to make them sensible of their wicked Lives and how great a sin it is to pretend to tell people their Fortunes; but they were not affected with their sinful Courses.	Proceedings of the Old Bailey, OA16950918, Sam Smith, Ordinary's Account, 18 September 1695
1696	February		in gaol	These Persons following were convicted formerly, and begged the Benefit of his Majesty's Pardon on their Knees, with condition that they would serve His Majesty in Flanders, and not to desert or come into this Kingdom on pain of Death. 1815	13 January	Chelmsford, ESS	at the Sessions	A gang of twelve vagabonds, consisting of three males and nine females, strolling about the country as gypsies, have been apprehended at Borley near Sudbury, Suffolk, who it seems, harbour in St. Giles's, London, some short portion of the year. The heads of this gang are Joseph and Hannah Lovel; and with them were two girls, whom they say are	The Derby Mercury , 16 February 1815, 1

				their daughters, called Esther and Susan; and another a niece, they call Ruth; a woman who calls herself Cinderella Boswell, a native of Staffordshire, but travels principally in Essex; and Palise the wife of Boswell's son, who belongs to a parish in Ipswich, but travels as a grinder. Joseph Lovel having about two years ago, been adjudged a rogue and vagabond, at Chelmsford, was at the sessions on the 13th ult. adjudged to be an incorrigible rogue and vagabond, and committed to the House of Correction at Chelmsford, for 6 months; the rest of the party were adjudged rogues and vagabonds, and were committed for a month. Three stout fellows belonging to the gang, effected their escape with their four asses and baggage. Two young chimney sweeps who had joined the gang, and who said their names were Henry and John Gaskin otherwise Smith, were detained on suspicion of stealing a donkey cart, in the neighbourhood of Newport, on the Cambridge Road. Some of the relatives of these sweeps have, it seems, been in the Laurel Hulk, at Portsmouth.

1820	14 November	Sutton Bridge, near Devizes, WIL	charged with murder	Early on Tuesday morning, it was discovered that a cottage house at Sutton bridge, near Devizes, inhabited by a woman named Judith Pearce, had been broken into during the preceding night, and the poor woman most inhumanly murdered, by repeated blows and wounds on her head. A gipsy named Edward Buckland, whom she had refused to relieve a short time past, and who had, in consequence, set fire to the thatch of her house; was suspected and apprehended for the murder, of which he is found guilty by the coroner's inquest, and committed for trial at the next assizes.	Trewman's Exeter Flying Post , 23 November 1820, 3

1821	17 March	Fisherton, WIL	executed	On Saturday Edward Buckland, a Gipsy (aged 70), was executed at Fisherton gaol, for the murder of a poor aged widow, who lived in a lone cottage at Seagry, with a little girl who was her grand-daughter.  An unpleasant crime occurred within the parish [of Seagry] in November 1820 when an elderly woman, Judith Pearce, was murdered in the grounds of her cottage at the foot of Seagry Hill. Convicted of her killing at the Salisbury Lent Assizes in 1821, a gypsy named Edward Buckland who had been in the area for about twenty years, carrying out odd jobs and begging, was shortly afterwards executed in Devizes Market Place. Local myths and folklore, both in Seagry and Sutton Benger, referred to hauntings by Buckland and resulted in children's "dares" to approach the victim's cottage. 1822	14 August	Lower Winchendon, BKM	marriage of Teanah	On Wednesday, the 14th instant, was married, at Lower Winchendon, Bucks, by the Rev. Thomas Hayton, John Fletcher, to Teanaah Buckland, daughter of Edward Buckland, head of a tribe of gypsies, who have long frequented that part of Buckinghamshire. - After the ceremony the party retired to a lane adjacent to the village, where they partook of an excellent dinner, provided for the occasion, part of which was served on solid plate, and the remainder on beautiful oriental china. The novelty of the scene attracted a number of respectable people from the neighbouring villages, all of whom were requested to partake of their cheer.	The Caledonian Mercury , 31 August 1822, 2

1830	13 July	Abingdon, BRK	at the Sessions as witness	Belcher Lee was charged with having, on the 5th May, at Clewer, stolen and carried away a she ass, the property of George Kidson. This was a complete Gipsy trick ; and interesting for the cunning and amazing expense of the defence, for whom Mr. Talfourd was retained. Geo. Kidson was first called, and all the other witnesses ordered out of Court. He lost his ass the 5th May ; saw it in the morning of the 5th in a lane, as he went to work ; the ass was missing in the evening when he returned. He saw her several weeks afterwards at home in his own yard ; knew her again by a white star in her forehead. Cross-examined by Mr. Talfourd - The star in the forehead was a very unusual mark ; had had the ass seven years, but could not tell if she was seven years old (laughter). Mary Kidson, the wife of the prosecutor, left the ass in the yard about half-past nine o'clock on the evening of the 4th of May, then fastened the gate, and went to bed. Her husband got up first ; thought he took the donkey to ride to his work, and expected to find her in the lane ; looked all day, but could not find her. Saw her again the 3d June ; went to Brooks's-lane in consequence of something I heard ; there I saw a camp of gypsies, and a little boy riding on my ass. I went up to her and said, "Jenny, oh dear Jenny! where have you been to all this time;" and the ass knew me as well as I knew her, and I went to the camp and claimed her, and a man said, "Belcher, here is a woman come to claim your donkey," who answered, "I bought her fair enough, but if it was hers she might take it till he could find the person he bought her of." He also offered to lend her a bridle, which she declined ; so she put her shawl round her ass's neck, and led her from the other asses, when she released her, and she followed her home. Prisoner was the man who said he bought the ass, and she was sure the ass was hers ; she knew it by the mark in the forehead, and she should have known it without that mark or any other. She also foaled on the 26th June, which was the time she expected her to foal. Cross-examined by Mr. Talfourd - Several persons had been to see the donkey she believed, two only of whom she had seen. It was on the morning of the 5th of May that she was missing. The husband had said it was missing on the evening of the 5th, and was re-called, but he did not appear capable of giving a suitable reply to a question, nor understand indeed the questions proposed to him, but it was concluded that the woman was right, and that the man was non compos mentis. Mary Ann Hughes identified Lee and the donkey, whom she saw going to Ascot Heath Races on the 8th of June. Thomas Kidson also saw prisoner with a company of gypsies on the 8th June, and the [sic] ass in question was with them, and he sent word to Mrs. Kidson. - John Minchin, a lad who formerly used to ride the ass, identified her as the property of the prosecutor. - William Stevens, constable of Clewer, was called, by whom it appears that Russell, brother-in-law to the prisoner, had been sent by him to re-obtain the ass from Kidson. Russell pointed out Lee as the person claiming the property, and Stevens took him into custody. --- How, a jobber from Brentwood, was then called for the defence, who stated that soon after Fairlop fair, June 8th, 1828, he bought this ass, and sold her on the 9th, at Romford Market, at six o'clock in the morning, to prisoner, for 24s. There are two persons here who saw me sell her. I have seen the ass in dispute, and say it is of the same colour and age; but I think it more likely, if he speak truth, thait [sic] it is not the very same ; and then very sagaciously remarked "but if it is the ass I sold to Lee it is the one I sold at Romford." "That is," replied his Lordship, "if it is the same, it is the same." E. Davis, a farming servant of Waltham Abbey, was present at the above deal, and was sure it was the same donkey, though he could give no reason but its being a light coloured one ; he did not even know that it had a star on its forehead ; he did not know what his business was at Romford, he often went ; it was three hours walk from Waltham Abbey ; never set out till seven o'clock in the morning ; (How said the ass was sold at six o'clock). In fact, he could remember everything about the deal but nothing else. Benjamin Fletcher, a ragman from Chelmsford, once had a donkey in his possession, which he sold to a stranger. He saw it in possession of Lee ; saw her again last Friday, it was shewn him by Mrs. Kidson ; knew her again by several marks ; which he had no doubt noticed for the first time on Friday last. - Edward Buckland also was partly sure it was the ass of the prisoner. - Zachariah Lee, brother to the prisoner, also knew the ass to have been in the prisoner's possession more than a year. - But all would not do ; the jury returned a verdict of Guilty, and the Court sentenced him to 12 calendar months' hard labour.	The Reading Mercury , 19 July, 2

1840	15 February	Marlow, BKM	in magistrates court as complainant	At the Petty Sessions held here on Saturday, the 15th inst...Plato Buckland, a well-known gipsy, appeared to prefer a case of assault against Jonathan Hickman, of Little Marlow. It appeared that the parties had been playing at "hussed penny" in a public-house, when a dispute arose, and the defendant tore the plaintiff's hat to pieces and put it on the fire. The plaintiff stated his case with "gesture fitting and tongue most voluble." The worthy Magistrates, however, very properly dismissed the case as a public-house quarrel, much to the satisfaction of the defendant and his solicitor, Mr. May. Plato was anything but philosophic under his defeat.	The Berkshire Chronicle , 22 February 1840, 3

1832	13 September	Waltham Abbey, ESS	died	An inquest was on the 17th instant held at Waltham Abbey, on the body of Elijah Buckley . The deceased was one of a party of gypsies who had been at Harlow Bush fair, where a quarrel ensued between him and the wife of one of the party named Stevens, who snatched up a pole, with which he struck him across the head. A regular skirmish followed, in which the deceased was once or twice knocked down. Buckley took to his bed in consequence, and never spoke again. He died on Saturday morning, and as it appeared, from extravasation of blood on the brain. Verdict – Manslaughter against John Stevens .	The Essex Standard, and Colchester and County Advertiser , 22 September 1832, 3
1832	19 December	Waltham Abbey, ESS	buried	aged 34, Brazier, High Beech	Original register transcript
1832	1 December	Chelmsford, ESS	Stevens at the Sessions	John Stevens , 40, described as a higgler, and who had a respectable appearance, was indicted for killing and slaying Elijah Buckley, at High Beech, on the 12th of September last. Mr. Jessopp and Mr. Robinson conducted the prosecution. Mr. Jessopp stated the case. The question which they had to consider was one of most grave importance, for the prisoner at the bar stood charged with the death of a fellow creature. The prisoner's wife it appeared was a gipse, and was the sister of a person of the same description. There had been a little fair at High Beech, and the prisoner had a booth there. Elijah Buckley, the deceased, had been to Harlow Bush Fair, and was returning from thence on the 12th of September. He first went to Epping where he stopped indulging in drinking for some hours, and then proceeded across to High Beech, and went to the booth kept by the prisoner. It appeared that they knew each other before, and the deceased had made use of some expressions respecting the character of the prisoner's wife, which he considered offensive. The prisoner was standing at the door of his booth, when he saw the deceased, his brother, and others approaching, and when they got near he asked Buckley what he had been saying about his wife. He said - nothing. His wife then came out, and snatching up a pole struck deceased two or three times : deceased was very angry and he struck at her, but the blow missed her. Then he caught hold of the stick and tried to wrench it out of her	The Chemsford Chronicle , 7 December 1832, 2

				hands. The deceased was a man of some pugilistic celebrity, and he wanted to fight the prisoner. When the prisoner saw what was going forward he snatched up a pole, and struck Buckley a blow on the head which at once knocked him down. He lay for some time senseless on the ground : it was for the jury to whether the blow was or was not the cause of his death. After he had lain on the ground some time, he recovered so far as to get up, and challenge the prioner to fight. His brother then interfered, and struck him, and when down kicked him. When he got up again, his brother observed to prisoner - "You have done quite enough to him - he is a murdered man," or words to that effect. Deceased then laid down on a bed of fern made for him on the forest ; he was afterwards removed to a bed in the booth, and to other places, but he never got up again - he died within 21 hours. Three surgeons of considerable practice and experience had examined the head to see what were the effects of the blow, but they would state that on that part they found a slight tumour only, which, when a finger was put on it, left an impression. But they found an extravasation of blood on the brain, which was the cause of death. He would state fairly what would be the evidence of the surgeons, because if his Lordship should tell them that evidence was not enough to convict, he should not waste the time of the Court in going through the case. The surgeons, then, not only said that what was done by the brother might produce it, but they also said that intoxication might produce the extravasation of which he died. It was due to the prisoner to say, that when he saw the consequences of his culpable conduct, he did all he could to save the life of the victim of his intemperate passion - and was, in fact, at considerable expense. If he were acquitted upon this charge he would always have it upon his mind - he would always reflect that he had the blood of a fellow creature upon his head, and he (Mr. J.) sincerely trusted that it might have a good effect in restraining him, as well as others, from similar acts of intemperate violence. Mr. Justice Littledale told the Jury that from the opening statement it did not appear that the evidence was very strong ; it was for them to say whether they would hear the evidence. Mr. Clarkson, who defended the prisoner, contended that it was evident from Mr. Jessopp's statement that death might have been produced by intoxication. The Jury said it appeared the investigation would answer no useful purpose, and they therefore returned a verdict of Not Guilty. The prisoner was then arraigned on the Coroner's Inquisition, and some discussion took place as to the mode of proceeding with it. Mr. Robinson, however, as one of the Counsel for the prosecution, agreed to quash it, which was accordingly done. On Saturday last, the Hon. Joseph Littledale, Knt, and Sir John Gurney, Knt, arrived here from Hertford, where the business was concluded the same day... Notwithstanding the prisons were so recently cleared of minor offenders, the Calendar contains 73 prisoners, including four females. Many of the charges are of a very aggravated description ; among them are the following : ...John Stevens, for killing and slaying Elijah Buckley, at High Beech... The business of the Courts commenced at 10 o'clock yesterday morning... The following prisoners were acquitted : ...John Stevens, for manslaughter...	+	The Essex Standard, and Colchester and County Advertiser, 8 December 1832, 3

1840	mid-July	Buckingham, BKM	at the Assizes as witness	THOMAS SMITH stood charged with having, on the 25th January last, feloniously stolen one mare, of the value of £5., the property of William Faulkner... William Faulkner - I am a labourer, and occupy a few acres of land at Great Horwood ; on the 25th January, I had a dark brown mare...I saw the prisoner the day previous ; he told me I ought to take my horses in, and asked me the way to Buckland. When I lost the mare, I tracked her all the way to Newton Longville ; I have not seen her since. - Charles Gibbons : I am a broker at Thame, and saw the prisoner riding a dark brown horse, on the 26th January ; he was going towards Stoken Church. It was between the hours of two and four in the afternoon. The horse seemed very tired and lame. He rode up to the Dashwood very fast, looking behind him, and violently beating the horse. I saw the prisoner about a week afterwards, and he told me he had sold the mare to William Wall, at Ippstone. - William Wall : I live at Ippstone. In January last the prisoner lent me a mare, she was dark brown and very lame. I sold her in London about five weeks afterwards. Before that, one Buckland had told me that if I did not sell the mare I should have her taken from me. - Timothy Buckland : I know the prosecutor, and knew the mare that was stolen from him. I saw the mare in Wall's possession, and asked him if he would sell her. Witness described the mare as previous witnesses had done. His lordship briefly summed up, and the jury at once returned a verdict of Guilty . Prisoner : You are all false.
