COLLINS, Asha

1893	mid-March	Barking, ESS	charged with robbery		The Lincolnshire Echo , 24 March 1893, 2
1893	mid-March	Stratford, ESS	in magistrates court	Since Sir George Borrow passed away, the gipsy race seems to have deteriorated. He did his best to keep it respectable, and failed, and now it is represented by degenerate descendants, Even their Queen has gone wrong [sic]. This unworthy monarch lives in a van at Barking, and calls herself Asha I. When she is not drinking rum she unfortunately devotes herself to theft. Her real name is Asha Collins. The other evening she issued from her van, and found a victim in the person of an organ-grinder with only one eye, who had temporarily ceased to dispense music in order to enjoy a smoke. While he stood with the pipe in one hand and a match in the other, the Queen of the Gypsies skilfully extracted from his pocket on the blind side a purse containing three shillings - the whole receipts of his day's music. She was caught in the act and brought before the magistrates at Stratford. They dethroned her for a month, during which time her van at Barking will be left desolate, while Queen Asha I. will be actively employed at the unqueenly occupation of oakum-picking.	The Lincolnshire Echo , 24 March 1893, 2
