DAWSON, John

1873	25 September	Cambridge, CAM	at Stirbitch Fair		The Cambridge Independent Press , 4 October 1873, 6
1873	27 September	Cambridge, CAM	in magistrates court	John Dawson, traveller, was charged with assaulting Valentine Brinkley, at Stirbitch fair on Thursday afternoon. Complainant said he was in a booth when defendant came in, pulled off his clothes, struck him several times with his fist, and threatened to knock his brains out. He did not offer to fight defendant. The defendant called Daniel Holmes, of Albert-street, who said that after the parties had quarrelled, he saw Brinkley pull off his coat to fight Dawson. The magistrates dismissed the case.	The Cambridge Independent Press , 4 October 1873, 6

1889	20 May	Ixworth, SFK	charged in magistrates court but did not appear	Walter Buteridge, George Buteridge, John Dawson, and Walter Dawson, gipsies, of Gray's, Essex, were charged with a similar offence [i.e. egging] at Euston on the 17th inst. - Fredk. Sherrington, a keeper to the Duke of Grafton, said that on the day in question he was at home at a quarter to ten in the morning. He saw five gipsies go past, and they began searching the fences. He followed them, and he saw them go to a pheasant's nest, and picked up stones and threw at the bird. When it rose they tried to knock it down with a stick, but it got away. They went on searching again, and he saw them take out several eggs and break one. He did not call for assistance until they stoned another pheasant off the nest. He then went to Hall Farm, and in company with Mr. Hall, the agent and another, they went in the direction of Euston Grove, and there came up with the four defendants. Witness searched one and found nothing upon him, but ten pheasants' eggs were found upon one of the others. They were all taken to a policeman to get their addresses. - The defendants, neither of whom appeared, were each fined 15s., and costs in all 22s. 9d.	The Bury and Norwich Post, and Suffolk Standard , 21 May 1889, 8

1873	25 September	Cambridge, CAM	at Stirbitch Fair		The Cambridge Independent Press , 4 October 1873, 6
1873	27 September	Cambridge, CAM	in magistrates court	William Dawson, traveller, was charged with assaulting Caroline Brunt, widow, at Stirbitch fair, on Thursday afternoon. Complainant said she was going down to the fair, when she met the defendant on the opposite side of the road. He crossed over and struck her on the head with his fist, knocking her into the fence. A boy named Spaxman was called on behalf of the complainant, but his evidence appeared to relate to a different affair. He said that he saw two women offer to fight Mrs. Brunt, who was on the doorstep of a house, when a tall young man, whom he believed to be the defendant, came up and threatened to blind her. He struck at the complainant but she shut the door. The complainant said this had happened after the assault complained of. Thomas Janaway, of Guildford, for defendant, said he saw Mrs. Brunt go up to the defendant, and spit in his face. He pushed her away, but she continued to abuse him down the road till she got to her house. She then continued to abuse the defendant from the doorstep, when witness left. Defendant denied striking complainant, who was his aunt ; but when she came and spat in his face, he pushed her away. Fined 2s. 6d. and 9s. costs. The defendant was further charged under a warrant dated August 1868, with assaulting - in company with two others - Jeremiah Cates. Defendant denied being the person named in the warrant, as he had not been in Cambridge for 12 years. Complainant being ill, the warrant was held over till the case could be gone on with.	The Cambridge Independent Press , 4 October 1873, 6
