The swarthy pair, in bridal apparel, were married by banns in the parish church. Immediately after the ceremony, the party, headed by a fiddler of their race, were ushered with due honors to the White Horse inn, where dancing, wine-drinking, cake-eating, &c. were the order of the day until one o'clock, when upwards of 50 sat down to roast beef and plum pudding. - It is upwards of 36 years since an occurrence of the kind took place in this village, though the place in olden times was no stranger to such things : the King of the Gipsies, we hear, was married here. 				Sessions for non-appearance as witnesses against Riley Gray, charged with larceny (the bill being ignored in consequence of their absence)...came to the Court and stated that their absence arose from their mistaking the day of trial, and that they attended the next day in error. The Recorder said that his suspicion in the first instance was that they purposely kept away, but now he was inclined to hope, from information he had received, that they had really been absent through mistaking the day. The best proof of their sincerity would be for them to go before the Grand Jury and prefer a bill against Gray. This they did, and Gray will be tried at the next Sessions.	Post , 24 March 1852, 3
1852	5 July	Bury St. Edmunds, SFK	at the Sessions	Riley Gray, charged with stealing one half-sovereign, the property of Chas. Noah Cook. The offence was committed at the last Bury fair, on the night of the 22nd of October, when the prosecutor was the Bull Inn, in this town, and offered to play 20 bowls for a sovereign with a man named Palfrey. The latter accordingly put a half-sovereign down, when the prisoner took it up. The police were immediately sent for, when the prisoner put his hands behind him, and the prosecutor believed passed it to another man. Two women, who were present at the time, swore that the prisoner took the money up. The Jury found the prisoner guilty, and he was sentenced to 3 months' imprisonment with hard labour.	The Bury and Norwich Post , 7 July 1852, 3

1871	18 October	Bottisham, CAM	in magistrates court as complainant	Shadrach Gray, 26, a deserter, was brought up on remand, charged with stealing a violin, value 5s., at Bottisham Lode, on the 5th inst, the property of his grandfather, Riley Gray, the well-known gipsy. It appears that Shadrach had taken French leave of his regiment. He was apprehended near Newmarket the same day, by p.c. Waller, with the violin in his possession. Committed for 7 days ; at the expiration of that time, to be given up to the Military authorities.	The Cambridge Chronicle and University Journal, Isle of Ely Herald, and Huntingdonshire Gazette , 21 October 1871, 8
1874	25 December	Newmarket, Union Workhouse, CAM	died	Riley Gray, an original and genuine gipsy, well-known throughout England, died at the Newmarket Union on Christmas Day, at the advanced age of 87. Riley was particularly known as the first of fiddlers at fairs. During the last few years of his life he settled down, and became more domesticated. He received parochial relief at Burwell, and after the death of his wife, whom he generally styled "Madam Gray," he relinquished his cottage and was admitted to the Newmarket Union, there to pass his declining years in peace. We believe he did so, for he frequently said he was more comfortable than he had ever been before. DEATH OF RILEY GRAY. - Riley Gray, an original and genuine gipsy, so well known throughout every part of England - died at the Newmarket Union on Christmas Day, at the advanced age of 87. Riley and his family, who were considered the principal of their tribe, were born in and bred up to a migrating and wandering life, and he, the head of the gipsies, was particularly known as the first and the most legitimate fiddler at all the country and other fairs in the kingdom. During the last few years of his life, Riley settled down and became more domesticated. He received parochial relief at Burwell, and after the death of his wife, whom he generally styled Madam Gray, he relinquished his cottage and was admitted to the Newmarket Union, there to pass his declining years in peace. On Christmas day, at the Newmarket Union-house, at the advanced age of 87 years, RILEY GRAY, a well-known gipsy.	The Cambridge Chronicle and Journal , 2 January 1875, 4 + The Norwich Mercury , 6 January 1875, 5 + The Bury and Norwich Post , 5 January 1875, 5

1844	9 April	Surfleet, LIN	at a public house all day	ELIAS BOSS, aged 17, Charged with having, on the 8th of April last, at Hammeringham, stolen two mares, the property of Jane Blades. - JOHN BURD GRAY, aged 48, also charged with this offence, pleaded guilty. The prisoners were gipsies, and Gray is said to be a son of the gipsy king. There were many of the wandering tribe in court to hear the result, and among the number was the monarch. On the night of the 8th of April the two horses were safe, and the next morning the two prisoners, who had been seen in the neighbourhood of prosecutrix's house the day before the horses were stolen, brought the animals to the house of a Mr. Merriman, at Surfleet, 30 miles from Cammeringham [sic]. The men stopped all day, and then went away taking their horses without paying for their keep. About a month afterwards Christopher Blades, in consequence of certain information he had received, went to Ipswich, and there he found the prisoner Boss riding one of the stolen horses into an inn yard. He gave him into custody, and prisoner said if the horse was his he was to take it. Prisoner told the constable that he was brought into this mess by Gray, who had brought the horses to the camp where his mother was on the night of the 8th of May, saying he had bought them at Sleaford Fair. He gave the constable a description of Gray, which partly led to his apprehension. Gray, however, on being sworn, said that they were both together when the horses were taken, and that he took one and prisoner the other. - Mr.	The Lincolnshire Chronicle , 26 July 1844, 2

				Macauley made an able defence for the prisoner. The Judge , having summed up, the jury returned a verdict of guilty . Gray was sentenced to 12 years and Boss to 10 years' transportation.
1844	late May	not known, DBY	arrested while playing fiddle at an inn	[He] fell a victim to the Sleuth hounds from Bow Street. It was the old fault - grai corin'. Two horses were missed from Mrs Blades' Farm, at ?Hammersingham, Lincs, + the runners, hot on the scent, arrested Elias Boss or Boswell, Riley's son by Charlotte Hammond [.] Elias, it is said, told them that Jack's left hand was a bit twisted, and that he had a tattoo mark on his right arm, and it was by these marks that they recognised him... "Jack was traced to a Derbyshire village, where he was found playing his fiddle at the inn. The runners, noticing that his left hand was a bit twisted, got challing with him, and suggested that as it was a hot day he should roll up his ^{shirt} sleeves. He did so. 'As described' said the redbreasts, and so they took him.	Oxford, Bodleian Library, Thomas William Thompson collection, Ms.eng.misc.e. 1283, ff.49-50

1844	20 July	Lincoln, LIN	tried at the Assizes	ELIAS BOSS, aged 17, and JOHN BURD GRAY, aged 42, two gipsies, were indicted for stealing two mares at Hammeringham on the 8th of April, the property of Jas. Blades. When called upon to plead, Boss replied that he was not guilty ; but Gray said that Boss' statement was false, and that both were guilty. He added they went together to Hammeringham for the purpose of stealing the mares, it being arranged that each should steal one, and that they should ride off in different directions. A plea of guilty was therefore entered against Gray ; and Boss stood his trial. The prisoners were seen with the mares taking them through the country, and 20 days after one was found at Ipswich, in the possession of Boss, who gave it up, and said that Gray had hired him to take care of the mare, bringing both to the camp, and placing one in his possession ; from the information given by Boss, Gray was apprehended at Leverton. Boss was sentenced to ten and Gray to twelve years' transportation . Some gipsies amongst the audience implored the Judge to be merciful and on the sentence being passed some of the females set up a dreadful howl.	The Lincoln, Rutland & Stamford Mercury , 26 July 1844, 2

1849	24 February	Draycott, DBY	gave evidence at an inquest	On Saturday last, at Draycott, on the body of Bidy Shirlock, aged 28 years, who was found dead in the lane leading from Draycott to Sawley, that morning, under very suspicious circumstances. On viewing the body the articles which the deceased had on her person appeared to be thoroughly saturated with water, and from the evidence given before the jury, she, in all probability, must have fallen into the ditch near the place where she was found ; there appeared also several bruises upon the face, and a large wound upon the top of her head, appearing to indicate violence. The following witnesses were carefully examined respecting the cause and circumstances attending the death of the party:- [...] Thomas Gray - I am a brazier by trade, and travel about the country, and my residence is at Outwell, in the county of Norfolk ; on Friday night, the 23rd day of February instant, I was sleeping in my cart in one of the lanes, near Draycott, and after being in bed for a considerable time some person came towards me, and asked if any of their people came past to-day with some dickle, meaning asses ; my son said no, there was no one of that description ; my son at this time was sleeping in the camp near my cart ; I upon this got up, and on opening the door of my cart, I saw a man and a woman ; I heard the cries of two children, one appearing to me to be older than the other, and the other one seemed to be quite young by the cry ; the man asked me the same question that had been asked my son, and I made the same answer, adding that they must have gone the other way, meaning Draycott, when the man and woman turned as if to come to Draycott ; it was a misty thick morning, and I could not speak so as to identify the same persons ; shortly after they were gone, a man came past, from whom I ascertained the time, who told me it was about six o'clock ; I believe that to be the time ; the man was coming from Draycott, and was going to the farm near where my cart and tent were pitched ; I cannot speak as to whether the two parties now present were the persons who came up to my son's tent as before stated. Posthumus Gray - I am son of Thomas Gray, and travel with my father ; I was with him last night, but cannot say what time we went to bed ; I slept in the tent, and my father in the cart ; some persons and two children came to my tent some time in the night, but what time I cannot tell ; there were a few sparks of fire, but very little fire ; they awoke me, and I found it to be a man and a woman ; the man asked me to light his pipe, I said yes ; the man was very drunk and fell down close upon my tent, when I called him not to put the fire out, and on being asked to go, he refused doing so ; I had two or three good sleeps, but cannot say what time it was ; my father did not awake for some time after	The Derby Mercury , 28 February 1849, 3

				this, and the man, woman, and two children remained there till he did awake ; on my father awaking, he asked who I had got there, I told him a man, a woman, and two children ; a man came past, and I asked him what o'clock it was, and he said about six ; the man and woman staid while I had one sleep, and on the man saying it was six o'clock, the man, woman, and children, went away ; it was very dark, and I cannot say who the man and woman was, not having seen them before, and owing to the darkness of the morning ; one of the children was much younger than the other ; I know this from the circumstances of one crying older than the other ; the woman said that she had been nine days confined ; I did not hear any noise in the lane during the night ; the woman was carrying both the children, one on her back, and the other in her arms. ...After the examination of the several witnesses, Robert Shirlock stated, that the deceased was his wife, and was 28 years of age, and he had been married to her for thirteen years ; he was married at Stone, in Staffordshire ; that he was a travelling brazier, or gipsy, and he expressed much surprise that he should be thought or even suspected of having injured his wife, who was the mother of his four children. The jury being satisfied from the evidence of Messers. Cade, that the death was occasioned from the cause stated in the examination of Mr. J. W. Cade, returned a verdict accordingly.

The deceased had partaken of a hearty dinner	The Cambridge Chronicle and University Journal, Isle of Ely Herald, and

				of beef and pudding, and having strolled a short distance from his camp, returned and sat down before the fire, and commenced cutting a stick, when he suddenly fell back and expired. Mr. Ellis, of Willingham, was examined on the inquest, and having expressed a decided opinion, without making any post mortem examination, that the deceased had died from disease of the heart, induced by chronic rheumatism, to which it appeared he had been subject for nine years, the jury returned a verdict that death had ensued from natural causes.	Huntingdonshire Gazette , 29 October 1859, 5

On viewing the body the articles which the deceased had on her person appeared to be thoroughly saturated with water, and from the evidence given before the jury, she, in all probability, must have fallen into the ditch near the place where she was found ; there appeared also several bruises upon the face, and a large wound upon the top of her head, appearing to indicate violence. The following witnesses were carefully examined respecting the cause and circumstances attending the death of the party:- [...] Thomas Gray - I am a brazier by trade, and travel about the country, and my residence is at Outwell, in the county of Norfolk ; on Friday night, the 23rd day of February instant, I was sleeping in my cart in one of the lanes, near Draycott, and after being in bed for a considerable time some person came towards me, and asked if any of their people came past to-day with some dickles, meaning asses ; my son said no, there was no one of that description ; my son at this time was sleeping in the camp near my cart ; I upon this got up, and on opening the door of my cart, I saw a man and a woman ; I heard the cries of two children, one appearing to me to be older than the other, and the other one seemed to be quite young by the cry ; the man asked me the same question that had	The Derby Mercury , 28 February 1849, 3

				been asked my son, and I made the same answer, adding that they must have gone the other way, meaning Draycott, when the man and woman turned as if to come to Draycott ; it was a misty thick morning, and I could not speak so as to identify the same persons ; shortly after they were gone, a man came past, from whom I ascertained the time, who told me it was about six o'clock ; I believe that to be the time ; the man was coming from Draycott, and was going to the farm near where my cart and tent were pitched ; I cannot speak as to whether the two parties now present were the persons who came up to my son's tent as before stated. Posthumus Gray - I am son of Thomas Gray, and travel with my father ; I was with him last night, but cannot say what time we went to bed ; I slept in the tent, and my father in the cart ; some persons and two children came to my tent some time in the night, but what time I cannot tell ; there were a few sparks of fire, but very little fire ; they awoke me, and I found it to be a man and a woman ; the man asked me to light his pipe, I said yes ; the man was very drunk and fell down close upon my tent, when I called him not to put the fire out, and on being asked to go, he refused doing so ; I had two or three good sleeps, but cannot say what time it was ; my father did not awake for some time after this, and the man, woman, and two children remained there till he did awake ; on my father awaking, he asked who I had got there, I told him a man, a woman, and two children ; a man came past, and I asked him what o'clock it was, and he said about six ; the man and woman staid while I had one sleep, and on the man saying it was six o'clock, the man, woman, and children, went away ; it was very dark, and I cannot say who the man and woman was, not having seen them before, and owing to the darkness of the morning ; one of the children was much younger than the other ; I know this from the circumstances of one crying older than the other ; the woman said that she had been nine days confined ; I did not hear any noise in the lane during the night ; the woman was carrying both the children, one on her back, and the other in her arms. ...After the examination of the several witnesses, Robert Shirlock stated, that the deceased was his wife, and was 28 years of age, and he had been married to her for thirteen years ; he was married at Stone, in Staffordshire ; that he was a travelling brazier, or gipsy, and he expressed much surprise that he should be thought or even suspected of having injured his wife, who was the mother of his four children. The jury being satisfied from the evidence of Messers. Cade, that the death was occasioned from the cause stated in the examination of Mr. J. W. Cade, returned a verdict accordingly.

1859	mid- October	Willingham, CAM	death of Israel	An inquest was held on the 21st inst., at Willingham, before F. Barlow, Esq., coroner for the county, on view of the body of Israel Gray, one of the gipsy tribe, who had been travelling in this county for many years. The deceased had partaken of a hearty dinner of beef and pudding, and having strolled a short distance from his camp, returned and sat down before the fire, and commenced cutting a stick, when he suddenly fell back and expired. Mr. Ellis, of Willingham, was examined on the inquest, and having expressed a decided opinion, without making any post mortem examination, that the deceased had died from disease of the heart, induced by chronic rheumatism, to which it appeared he had been subject for nine years, the jury returned a verdict that death had ensued from natural causes.	The Cambridge Chronicle and University Journal, Isle of Ely Herald, and Huntingdonshire Gazette, 29 October 1859, 5
