1840	15 February	Marlow, BKM	Plato in magistrates court as complainant	At the Petty Sessions held here on Saturday, the 15th instPlato Buckland, a well-known gipsy, appeared to prefer a case of assault against Jonathan Hickman, of Little Marlow. It appeared that the parties had been playing at "hussed penny" in a public-house, when a dispute arose, and the defendant tore the plaintiff's hat to pieces and put it on the fire. The plaintiff stated his case with "gesture fitting and tongue most voluble." The worthy Magistrates, however, very properly dismissed the case as a public-house quarrel, much to the satisfaction of the defendant and his solicitor, Mr. May. Plato was anything but philosophic under his defeat.	The Berkshire Chronicle, 22 February 1840, 3
